

Fruit of the Gods

Soma Orchards, Kaveri River Valley, Karnataka

Come April in Karnataka, as summer peaks in these latitudes before moving north, the heat becomes bearable in anticipation of mango heaven. Well, heaven is here, and we ship to you the best Mangifera indica on earth - The iconic king of Indian mangos that comes by many names - Ratnagiri's Alphonso, Bombay's Hapus, Karnataka's Badami. The saffron smooth fleshed alphonso with its distinct fragrant taste will be unforgettable from first bite

Nestled in the lush valley of the River Kaveri lies the family owned Soma Farm & its fruit orchards. Ancient trees of tamarind, badami & banyan grow alongside young saplings of cardamom, pepper vines and Ratnagiri alphonso. As times have changed so have crops and ways, yet the circle of life on the farm remains unchanged and centered around the timeless simple processes of creation.

Sourced from the best Alfonso growers in Ratnagiri, these mango trees have been nurtured by the same hands for the past fifteen years of their lives. The farm is home to a menagerie of humans, bees, fowl, bovines, k9s and felines, all together a part of the orchards ecosystem

Kaveri water fed, pollinated by the farm's bees, fertilized with manure from farm cows, sun baked and then ripened naturally in beds of hay, the crew work tirelessly year round, hands on, to grow healthy fruit for the mango lover.

It is a labour of love for a fruit that elicits so much passion worldwide. At the end of the mango year, the greatest pleasure for each of us on the farm, is in your enjoyment of this fruit fit for gods.
